

Dear Ursula von der Leyen,

Dear President-elect of the European Commission,

As Vice President and coordinator of Italy's cities and metropolitan areas of the EUROCITIES network, we are calling on you to consider allocating a portfolio on urban matters to a high level member of your new college, namely a vice president. Around 70% of EU policies must be implemented at the local level, meaning the EU's ability to meet its long term strategic objectives largely depends on the performance of its cities.

We work at the level of government closest to the people. We know our cities and the demands of our citizens, and we know that the active and continued engagement of citizens at the local level is the opportunity to bridge the ongoing gap between EU decision makers and people.

Urban and European challenges are strongly connected. Cities' capacity to tackle climate change is critical for turning the goals and commitments of the Paris agreement into reality. Cities' efforts to promote equal and fair societies, with access to quality jobs for all, is the fundamental basis for a Europe in which no one is left behind. And cities' ability to manage the digital transformation and optimise the use of new technologies is vital for a more inclusive, efficient and dynamic Europe. Together with our European colleagues, we can help you deliver on many of the ambitions you have expressed in your programme, such as a Green deal or a new push for European democracy.

Your Commission can seize this opportunity and match this partnership by fully recognising the role of cities in the EU. We urge action, namely via a Commission vice president, as a step towards more effective policies for people.

Such a member of your team would ensure a stronger leadership and more transparent coordination of EU policies and financial tools that have an impact on the ability of cities to implement policy and be sustainable and liveable places in Europe.

A new college, with new mandates, can help set a course ahead that works for all Europeans. Ensuring a good representation of urban matters in your Commission would be a key step in this direction.

We hope you will be able to follow on our call and we would be most pleased to meet with you at your earliest convenience

Yours sincerely,

Dario Nardella
